St. Ann's School:

St. Ann's School was the first educational institution of the Congregation of the Apostolic Carmel Sisters started in 1870 to provide sound Catholic education. St. Ann is the Patron Saint of the School. She is a model for teachers and mothers as she was a woman of deep faith, solid piety and great charity. In her sterling virtues students have an idea to emulate and a shining example to follow. The torch of Education lit in 1870 is still a living flame and the motto "EXCELSIOR" indicates the goal "Always Higher, Always Greater, Always Nobler".

VISION:

Drawing inspiration from Jesus Christ, the Supreme teacher, protection from our Lady of Mount Carmel and direction from our foundress Mother Veronica, and expressing solidarity with all people, St. Ann's High School envisages the building of a God oriented educative community to develop them as the precious Human resource of our Society.

HISTORY

The torch lit in 1870 is still a living flame providing 'Excelsior' as it lights up fresh spots to venture into; stressing as it were the endlessness of a good education. Sr. Elias, torch bearer for the first three years handed over the growing responsibility to Sr. Aloysia in 1873, a parishioner of Rosario Church, who cut out by the Master's hand for an unusual venture, for a fully dedicated 36 years proved herself an excellent educator with tremendous courage and an inborn farsightedness. Step by step they marched forward through the years as they still keep doing, dependent on a never failing Protector.

The history of St. Ann's, as an educational institution, goes back to the Sisters of St. Joseph of the Apparition, who were invited by Bishop Michael Antony to open a school for girls, which they did in 1859, the School was housed in an old building called the 'Bungalow'. In 1866 a gable of the building gave way. On another day the roof fell in with serious consequences. One girl died and several were injured. The school had to be closed down and the whole establishment moved to Jeppu. Later, Bishop Michael Antony got the old building- the 'Bungalow' completely overhauled and called it 'St. Ann's'. Here they started a small school. This was the school that the Apostolic Carmel Sisters took over on their arrival in Mangalore in 1870.

In 1874, the ground floor of St. Ann's main school building was constructed for the ever increasing number of pupils that sought admission. The Girls were thence forward prepared for a Departmental examination and the school was placed under the salary grant system.

It will be in place to quote the letter of recommendation of the Education department issued by the First Inspector of schools Mr. L. Gaithwaite after his inspection dated April 22, 1878.

"The St. Ann's Girls School has always been favourably reported on by me. Its usefulness is unquestionable and is well thought of by all classes of the community in Mangalore. The nuns who teach on the staff have set a most laudable example by passing the literary tests for a Teacher's certificate".

In the meantime the south Kanara passed into the hands of the Jesuits, the worldwide reputed educationists. The Rev. Fr. Urban Stein S.J from St. Mary's College, Bombay was appointed Manager of St. Ann's Girls High school in January 1879.

During the School 1884 - 1888 the Institution was raise to the status of a High School, government recognition was secured and the school was brought in line with other institution.

In 1885 St. Ann's Kanarese School was opened and in 1887 shifted to Dongerkery and renamed "The Victoria caste Girl's School". In 1891 the school received Government Recognition as a Lower Secondary Middle School. In 1892 it switched over to English Medium.

St. Ann's School continued to grow under the matchless leadership of Mother Aloysia. The first junior Intermediate class was started in a small cottage on the St. Ann's campus in 1920, which proved to be the cradle of St. Agnes College. In 1921 came an unexpected turn in the tide of affairs at St. Ann's. The three higher classes viz. From IV, V and VI were shifted to St. Agnes, Bendore to ensure a perennial flow of students for the newly opened St. Agnes College. St. Ann's was mute with pain over its loss. In reality though it was seed time and the blossom appeared in 1934 when the middle school with its excellent standard was gladly upgraded into St. Ann's Girls High School. The St. Ann's High School at Pandeshwar introduced Kannada Medium in 1946. The English Medium Primary School and Kannada Primary Schools subsequently became independent units with their own buildings.

St. Ann's High School was upgraded to St. Ann's Composite P.U College in the academic year 1997- 98. Various combinations available are

1. Science - PCMB, PCMC

St. Ann's Teachers' Training Institute, Mangalore – 575001

A brief History and progress of our Institute:

St. Ann's Teacher Training Institute for Women, Mangalore was started in 1890 at a time when no primary teacher training institute existed along the west Coast of Karnataka and hence the need for one such was deeply felt. Those who led the way in the bygone years saw that they along with the course of pedagogy inculcated a very high standard of efficiency in every teacher they trained, training them on the best educational lines at the same time molding their character to virtue and discipline.

The history of St. Ann's Teacher Training Institute has been a long record of progressing growth and adaptations to the changing needs of education at various stages. Today when galloping advances in science and technology are taking place on one side and the problems of illiteracy, social evils, moral and spiritual upheavals prevail on the other the teacher trainees are encouraged and provided opportunities to qualify and upgrade themselves in the knowledge of the former and are exposed to the latter situations thus making education a community oriented endeavor. To this end quality excellence, effort, dedication and perseverance are emphasized. The faculty of this Institute is in keeping with the mind of the Department of Education of the Government of Karnataka in carrying out the projects suggested.

It is the joy of the Institute to utilize all opportunities to continue to prepare the right type of teachers for the Primary Schools who will bring about an all round development in the personality of our young future citizens.

VISION

Drawing inspiration from JESUS CHRIST the LIGHT OF THE WORLD the teacher trainees will be LIGHT aloft on the candle stand to dispel darkness in all forms by their commitment and service to the little ones the precious future human resources of our country.
